

MEET OUR SPEAKER: Pamela Woody

Pamela Woody is the founder and executive director of Advocates Against Human Trafficking. A survivor of childhood sexual assault and abuse, has a heart for the vulnerable and is compelled to help human trafficking victims become survivors, then thrivers like her. Pamela and the Advocates partner with law enforcement, safe homes, and other organizations in the anti-trafficking movement. She is privileged to help provide direct services to survivors through mentorships, and assistance with clothing, housing, education, and employment opportunities as they continue their restorative journey. She also assists previously-trafficked prison inmates through encouragement, empowerment, and by coordinating safe prison releases, transportation, reviewing safe housing options, and post-release services and is grateful for every opportunity she's given to help vulnerable women, children and men.

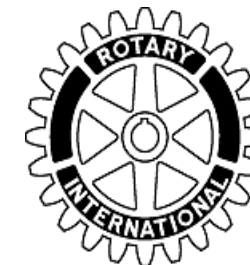

Pamela is extremely grateful for her husband and children and their willingness to join in the anti-trafficking movement with her. They, and other close friends, have supported her travels to Swaziland, Africa and South Asia, where, alongside other NGOs, she serves human trafficking survivors. She looks forward to serving others for the rest of her life, wherever the journey takes her.
